Circle Serves Rescue Squad

It takes "work in the kitchen" to get ready for "company", and that's just what these members of the Joanna Maiden Circle, Liberty Baptist Church, did on Saturday night at the Rescue Squad Building. Their guests were Squad members and wives and according to the Squad, the work in the kitchen showed up in delicious eating later on.... (From left): Nancy Hall, Rosa Campbell, Mary Frances Bryant, June Chenault and Edith Scruggs. The menu included ham, country style green beans, candied sweet potatoes, rolls, fruit salad and apple Betty dessert.

County Plants 1,411,990 Seedlings

Virginia's private and industrial tree farmers proved once again that "trees are a renewable resource" by planting some 56.9 million of them in the Old Dominion during the 1971 planting season. This was the highest number of trees planted for reforestation purposes in any one year in Virginia, the highest being last year's 56.2 million seedlings. The actual number of trees planted was 56,882,810. This 1971 figure brings the total for Virginia's 55 year reforestation history up to more than 784 million seedlings.

Appomattox County land owners planted 1,441,990 seedlings; Nelson, 126,375; Prince Edward 158,000; Charlotte, 1,475,100; Campbell, 733,300; Buckingham 1,830,950.

Using an average of 750 seedlings per acre, the 56.9 million planted this year represents the reforestation of approximately 76,000 acres of idle agricultural or cutover woodland. This acreage is boosted to a total of 80,797 with the inclusion of 4,797 acres which were reforested by direct seeding; that is, distribution of tree seeds over the land by hand, mechanical means, or by helicopter.

Of the 56.9 million seedlings planted, 52.3 were loblolly pine. White pine accounted for 2.8 million of the total, followed by black locust with some 656 thousand, planted mostly by mining companies. Virginia pine made up 541 thousand.

During the past year, farmers and other individual landowners planted 26,007,840 tree seedlings on their lands – roughly 46 percent of the total. Of that number, 9,109,575 were provided free or on a matching basis by forest industry, of which the pulp and paper companies gave nine million. Industrial plantings on company lands added up to 28,544,400 seedlings (50 percent of the total), with pulp and paper companies accounting for 23,548,550, lumber and other wood-using industries being credited with 4,465,850, and non-forest industries making up the remaining 530,000.

State, federal, and municipal or county agencies were responsible for planting 2,330,570 of the total – 688,020 in state forests, 233,700 by other state agencies, and 1,089,600 on federal lands. City and county governments, schools, civic clubs, and public organizations also planted 319,250.

The Virginia Division of Forestry was responsible for growing and distributing 2,469,160 seedlings. All Division of Forestry trees were grown at the state nurseries in Kew Kent and Augusta counties. The Continental Can Company nursery near Chester produced 10 million loblolly seedlings; and the remaining 3,343,450 were obtained from the North Carolina Forest Service (2.8), the Catawba Timber Company nursery in Tennessee, the Maryland Department of Forests and Parks, and private nurseries.

The leading tree planting county was Dinwiddie with 2,924,185 to its credit. In second place was King and Queen County with 2,815,775; followed by Brunswick with 2,616,785; Lunenburg with 2,257,700; and King William with 1,917-550. Altogether there were 21 counties of Virginia in which more than one million trees were planted this year.

VIRGINIA FORESTS, Inc. is proud of the part it has played in encouraging tree planting in the Old Dominion, and is continuing its efforts along this line. It has now concluded the fifth year of its second "Plant More Trees" program, whose goal is to encourage the planting of 500 million tree seedlings by 1976. This would match in 10 years the accomplishments of the first 50 years of Virginia's reforestation history. The program is ahead of schedule, for the toal of the past five years now stands at 271,216,810.

Supervisors Vote To Fund New School

The board instructed the Clerk to dispatch a letter to Mr. H.C. Pulliam commending him for his membership on the board and his many contributions to it and that because of redistricting they reluctantly had to see him leave his post as board member.

Board chairman O.W. Martin Jr. said that he feels that he speaks for the board in saying that Mrs. Anderson is "eminently qualified" for the position, by reason of education and experience in many fields of service.

ABC Board Inspector

H. G. Riddle, inspector for the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, discussed several matters with supervisors Friday.

He said that under the new Virginia Constitution an ordinance passed by the board of supervisors on June 8, 1960 is now void. The resolution outlawed the sale of wine or other alcoholic beverages in the county.

In other words, restaurants can apply to the board to sell wines within the county or retailers can apply to the board for a license to sell wines, according to Mr. Riddle. The ABC Board, he explained, makes every effort to cooperate with the attitudes and feelings of the people in the area close by an applicant, when such applications for wine sales are made.

Mr. Riddle explained further that liquor by the drink cannot be sold within a given county unless a referendum is held with at least one-third of the people voting who voted in the last presidential election. A majority vote is necessary for such a referendum to pass.

An ABC Store can be set up without a referendum, Mr. Riddle said, but in that case a petition either for or against such action can be presented to the ABC Board. Such petition signed by thirty percent of the people who voted in the last presidential election.

Revenue Office

The board also approved the hiring of two staff members for the office of the Commissioner of Revenue. The present Deputy Commissioner of the Revenue, Mrs. Ida Belle Campbell, will become treasurer of Appomattox on January 1, 1972, result of the November county elections.

Sheriff's Autos

The supervisors opened bids for new automobiles for the sheriff's department. A bid for two automobiles, one a replacement vehicle, was approved on the bid of Moses Motor Company.

Dental Care

Dr. J. B. Kinlaw, health director for Appomattox County Health Dept. and his administrative assistant, Mr. Fred Keezee, appeared before the board of supervisors to discuss dental treatment for children and young people.

Dr. Kinlaw said that at least half of the students in the county high school have dental difficulties, and that many times such dental needs are neglected. He said that with cooperation from local dentists arrangements could be made for care for indigent patients with state reimbursement for part of the expense.

It was suggested by the supervisors that anyone accepted for dental treatment under such a plan be screened, and board chairman O. W. Martin, Jr. used the term "heavy screening" by the Welfare Dept. before such treatment is rendered.

"The board is sympathetic to dental needs by our youth," he said but recognizes that individual need to accept a certain amount of responsibility. The board requested Dr. Kinlaw to get in touch with Mrs. Hazel Davis, Welfare Dept. supt. before the board takes any action on the plan.

Tax Exemption

The Appomattox School Foundation (Robert E. Lee Academy) has been granted tax exemption for county taxes during 1971 and thereafter as a non-profit organization in action given final approval on Friday.

Jail Supplies

The board approved the purchase of eight new mattresses and twelve pillows following a jail inspection report and recommendation from the Dept. of Welfare and Institutions.

Sheriff J. E. Richardson also asked for and received approval for the purchase of five "claw twisters", a new type of arm grip used by law enforcement officers to control unruly prisoners.

KINGS SUPER MARKET OPENS IN PLAZA

jor grocery chains which are discontinuing this help to the shopper, Kings still has several staff members to assist in taking purchases to the customer's car.

Seven check out stands are furnished with the latest in automatic change and trading stamp dispensers, and there's an "egress line" for those with only a few purchases.

For efficient replacement of inventory King is using the MSI ordering system, a computerized method by which each item in the store is coded. When it's to be reordered the information about the needed items is punched onto a tape which is then fed into a telephone system connected with storage warehouses; the needed items are reordered and replacement becomes routine.

Manager of the Appomattox Kings Super Market is John B. Ferguson with Dan Seamster as assistant manager. James ("Pete") Clark is manager of the meat department. Paul Ford is produce manager.

The employees will enjoy some "red carpet" treatment themselves in that employees' lounge has been set up and will include coffee and soft drink dispensers.

Kings Super Market is combining "soft goods" that is, clothing, appliances and household needs, with the sale of groceries, meat and items usually associated with a grocery outlet.

Ralph King, owner of this newest store to open in the Plaza Shopping Store, says that this is just the "old fashioned" general store brought up to date with the newest in merchandising techniques.

Ralph's own friendliness and insistence on "service" to his customers is in itself a notable part of his operation.

When he was manager of West End Market and had that as his major concern, he knew about 95% of the shoppers and could call about half of those by first name. Now he is gone from Appomatox a good bit of the time, traveling to the five Lynchburg store locations, Bedford, two stores in Brookneal, Halifax, two supermarkets in Lynchburg and he has designs on opening other stores in this county.

No further expansion of the chain is planned at this time, King's first concern is to get each unit operating smoothly, Ashworth Kings manager at Appomattox, declares.

11TH GRADE 4-H

The 11th Grade 4-H meeting was held first period, Dec. 2, 1971, in the ACHS auditorium.

The meeting was called to order by president, Doug Webb. Sally Harvey, secretary, then read the minutes of the previous meeting.

The business session was then turned over to the advisors, Mr. James and Mrs. Johnson. Our advisors informed us of the plans which were being made for the 4-H Christmas Dance. It was announced that the dance would be held Dec. 30, 1971 in the ACHS gym for grades 8-12. A band from Lynchburg had been booked and a committee consisting of Sally Harvey, Billie Brightwell, and Brenda Ferguson was set up to sell tickets.

With no further business the meeting was turned over to Billie Brightwell who showed slides taken during the Virginia-Tennessee Interstate Exchange Program held this past summer, by members of the Lucky Clover 4-H Club.

The toys will be gathered up on Saturday, Dec. 18. Games, toys, tricycles, scooters, skates – they're all needed to make a boy or girl happy. U. S. Marine reservists spend many hours repairing and painting the items for Christmas giving.

Persons interested in donating toys may call Floyd Flint, Troop Scoutmaster at his home 352-7250 for pickup of the items, or they may be brought directly to his home on North Avenue, Appomattox.

Like so many other HD Clubs, the Wreck Island members contributed to "Pennies for Friendship".

WANT TO KEEP FLAME BURNING

A visitor to the Clerk of the Circuit Court's office not long ago noticed the gas flame burning in the War Memorial on the Court House lawn and asked the clerk, Mrs. Aldah Gordon, how she might help with the project. Mrs. Gordon gave her the name of Burke Guill, American Legion Post 104, Appomattox.

Any member of the Post can accept donations to a growing fund to keep the flame lit for a longer period each day. Post 104 with help from others, erected and dedicated the large granite marker in May of 1971.
